INTERNSHIP PROGRAM INFORMATION

Sisters of Color Ending Sexual Assault (SCESA) was born out of a desire for Women of Color in the anti-sexual assault movement across the country to reclaim our leadership and ensure inclusion of our experiences in ending sexual assault. SCESA believes sexual assault is a symptom of a larger problem that reinforces an environment which allows violence to exist and a society that has deemed some people as less deserving. Therefore, SCESA's overall fundamental principal is to give voice and develop action strategies that incorporate and address the multiple layers of discrimination that are faced by Women of Color and Communities of Color.

Internship Positions Available: SCESA offers several internship positions every semester:

The Communication Intern assists with social media, newsletter writing, basic administrative, and research.

The Policy/ Advocacy Intern assists with research and reporting on policy meetings and potential host organizations. Assisted with web-based research, compilation and analysis of data and data trends, and support for policy events.

Eligibility: A candidate must be a graduate or undergraduate student and have a:

Demonstrated interest and commitment to working on Communities of Color and Women's rights issues

Oral and written communication skills
